Course Descriptions:EVNT1000 Introduction to Event Management 42.0 Hours

This survey course introduces students to the many facets of event management from initial research through execution and post-event analysis. In addition, students learn about the significance of event management in terms of economic, social and cultural impact as they consider their various stakeholders.

EVNT1001 Event Planning and Programming 42.0 Hours

Core to a successful event is conducting research in advance and planning accordingly. Students must conduct a needs assessment as a start for event planning. An understanding of the needs of event organizers and attendees determines factors such as the size and length of an event as well as the programming components and delivery format including such elements as sourcing and evaluating suppliers, and site survey and analysis. Students are expected to demonstrate an understanding of production schedules, timelines and the preparation of a comprehensive business plan.

EVNT1002 Event Accounting and Finance 42.0 Hours

The financial management of an event is key to its success. Students must demonstrate skills in terms of budgeting, cost control and breakeven analysis. Students receive an overview of budgeting theory so that they may organize a successful event dealing with a variety of revenues and expenses. These include such elements as direct and indirect costs, registration fees, exhibitor fees, fundraising efforts, cash and in-kind sponsorships, and revenue generating opportunities.

EVNT1003 Event Operations 42.0 Hours

This course provides students with the knowledge and skills required to execute meeting and event activities. The focus is primarily on the execution of a large event. All facets of the critical path and logistics must be addressed such as: transportation, lodging, registration, food and beverage, sound, lighting, staging, parking and contingency planning.

EVNT1004 Event Technology 42.0 Hours

Project management software and event industry specific software are used to ensure smooth planning and execution of an event. Other technology used in the industry includes audio-visual equipment, lighting, video and web conferencing, and evolving forms of new media that allow for virtual events and meetings.

EVNT1005 Ethics and Law for Events 42.0 Hours

Professionalism must be defined for event planners given the many challenges that will be faced in terms of ethics, business and law. Professional relationships must be healthy and ethical. This course, with a substantial orientation to case studies, examines the practical aspects of event planning in terms of ethical and legal implications. Consideration is also given to risk management issues as arising in the planning and operation of an event.

EVNT1006 Networking and Fundraising 42.0 Hours

Event planners must also be exceptional networkers. Sponsorship and fundraising are key to successful event management. Planners must be able to create connections amongst delegates, customers, service providers, human resources (including volunteers), and the general public. Generally termed 'soft skills', this course focuses students on refining abilities to establish and maintain contacts with a diverse population with diverse needs.

EVNT1007 Event Human Resources Management 42.0 Hours

Events are successful because of the employees and volunteers who provide exceptional customer service. This course focuses the event manager on successful human resource management skills and knowledge, oriented to the recognition of people as pivotal to successful event planning and implementation.

EVNT1008 Event Marketing 42.0 Hours

Marketing of an event requires the ability to conduct extensive research and to create engaging products. Students are required to design and develop a variety of themed activities, displays and exhibits and to appropriately strategize their marketing. Students will be required to develop a comprehensive event or festival marketing plan including market research, segmentation and the communications mix.

EVNT1009 Event Management 126.0 Hours

This course brings together the theoretical and practical applications of event planning. Students are required to plan, implement and conduct an analysis of an actual event. This course provides a synthesis of all planning, execution and post-event analysis. Such an event may be a benefit, arts and design industry event, entertainment event, trade show or an event in the fields of hospitality, marketing and advertising, or sports.
